President Kennedy's special assistant for civil rights, Harris Wofford Jr., is leaving the White House to become Peace Corps representative in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, it was learned yesterday.

While there has been no official announcement, Administration sources said that R. Sargent Shriver Jr., Peace Corps director and brother-in-law of the President, had persuaded Wofford to accept the post in which he will oversee Peace Corps activities in East Africa.

Wofford, assistant to the President, has divided his time about equally between the field of civil rights and the Peace Corps. It was not known whether Mr. Kennedy would immediately replace Wofford.

In the meantime, associates of Robert Amory Jr., who resigned as a deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency to become a top aide to Budget Director David E. Bell, said yesterday that he is expected to start work at the Budget Bureau on Monday. The Associated Press said that Amory's resignation from CIA was described as entirely of his own choosing.
